

Reflections

*One thing good for the soul is confession,
so here goes ... "True Confession Time."
I've wasted much time with my own reflection,
guilty of the "self-absorption" crime.*

*Mirrors may well be the worst invention ever (as if we were short of ways to our self!).
They're nearly everywhere!
Our enemy is clever, knowing most choose
"looks" above all else.*

*The rear-view mirror is the biggest snare,
we all know just what I mean.
I'm guilty of checking my face and hair
while folks on the road are not seen.*

*I was wondering the other day
(gazing in the bathroom mirror)
how much of my life I've spent "primping."
I've failed to look far beyond what's near.
On "loving my neighbor,"
I've been skimping.*

*With every "primp," another soul dies
perhaps of hunger, perhaps without hope.
Both are preventable. The mirror lies.
Consider yourself "lucky" when it's broke.*

*We can "break away"
from the charming mirror's grip.
Let's turn from them so we can "get a life."
Instead of a lifelong "narcissism trip," let's reflect our Savior Jesus Christ.*
